(U) Different species of coronavirus also are sometimes referred to as "strains". There are four other endemic human coronaviruses, which typically cause nothing worse than the common cold, and it is possible for a patient to be infected with the COVID-19 virus and one of these other coronaviruses. In a recent US study, 4% of 116 COVID-19 patients also were infected with another coronavirus at the same time.

Were you tracking on the questions from the DR to [REDACTED] ? I do not want to send as is; Our
(b)(3):10 USC 424 folks provided their views (I wanted them in on the conversation)

Is there a plan for how to answer the DR? If so, we need to clean this up before including...
